

Lukasz Gruszczynski is an associate professor (dr. habil.) of international law at the Institute of Legal Studies of the Polish Academy of Sciences (Warsaw, Poland) and a visiting researcher at the Hungarian Academy of Sciences Centre for Social Sciences Institute for Legal Studies (2016-17). He is also the Head of Legal Affairs (Warsaw) of Trade Pacts – a Geneva based international trade and investment consultancy

In the past Lukasz was a visiting fellow at the University of Michigan Law School and Lauterpacht Centre for International Law at the University of Cambridge as well as an intern at the Legal Affairs Division of the World Trade Organization. He earned his Ph.D. from the European University Institute in Florence. In 2010 he published “Regulating Health and Environmental Risks under WTO Law” and in 2014 “Deference in International Courts and Tribunals: Standard of Review and Margin of Appreciation”, both with Oxford University Press. A number of his publications is available on Academia and SSRN.

He specializes in WTO law, international dispute settlement and regulation of tobacco products. Lukasz is a Managing co-Editor of the Polish Yearbook of International Law and a correspondent editor of the European Journal of Risk Regulation (CUP).